IEMA stands tough on trailers

BY ED LEPOMA

Despite pleas to national and Hancock County leaders, the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency has removed a family living in two travel trailers off Longfellow Drive since last September.

Etta Holden at 3213 Longfellow Drive on June 24, notifying her that federal regulations do not allow people to live in trailers in a flood-prone area past 180 days. MEMA scheduled a moveout inspection on July 2 and waited until July 6, after the Fourth of July weekend, to move the family out and repossess the two trailers.

home on the lot, located on Longfellow just outside the Bay St. Louis city limits and not far from state Hwy. 603.

The Echo later learned that Holden, a woman identified as Barbara Foreman, and four MEMA sent a notice to Mary adult dependents, are temporarily staying with Holden's sister on Washington Avenue in Bay St. Louis.

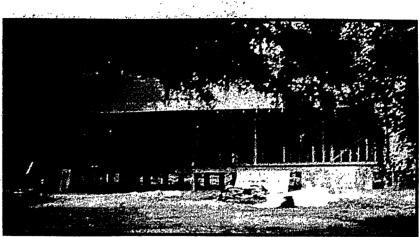

Cliff Lusk, the public relations officer for MEMA stationed in Jackson, said a statement by memorandum was issued to all coastal communities by MEMA and strongly discouraged local governments from granting a variance to the

The family is building a 180-day limit on travel trailers unless there are dire circumstances.

> A memo issued June 22 by MEMA Director J.E. Maher said, "Mere economic or financial hardship alone is not exceptional. Inconvenience, aesthetic considerations, physical handicaps, personal preferences, or the disapproval of one's neighbors cannot, as a rule, qualify as an exceptional hardship."

female visitor from Picayune entrance to the park to buy was found dead in the water.

An autopsy was pending, but Hancock County Sheriff's investigator Phillip Pavolini identified the victim as Monica Jenkins, 26, of 232 Old Kiln Road, Picayune.

Pavolini said a boater on the Jourdan River in McLeod Park noticed the body of Jenkins slumped half in the water and half on the beach side at 6:27 p.m. and alerted the Sheriff's Department.

Deputy Phil Johnson was at the park, along with Park Ranger Roland Lee, and Pavolini said Johnson boarded a jet ski to get to the body, then brought it to shore.

Pavolini said the investigation is continuing, but Jenkins was spending the day at McLeod Park with a boyfriend, some children and another man. He said the boyfriend was

Port clinic plans changed

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock Medical Center authorities have all but abandoned plans to build an industrial medical clinic at the Port Bienville Industrial Park, but may be able to move into part of the Dave McDonald Training Center.

At Monday's meeting of the Port and Harbor Commission, Jerry Hemphill, the industrial park's manager, told commissioners there have been some initial discussions with HMC Administrator Hal Leftwich about locating a clinic in part of the training center.

Hemphill said the suggestion was made after HMC opened bids on plans to build a 4,000-square-foot clinic on land the port planned to provide the hospital near the training center.

Later, Leftwich told the Echo that the hospital had between $300,.000 and $400,000 set aside for the building, but the low bid submitted by one contractor was $560,000, and the highest bid received was in the range of $760,000.

"Obviously, we're still interested in coming out to Port Bienville," Leftwich said. He said he would work with the Commission on alternative plans.

Fire department needs money

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis' Fire Department is cramped in the same living space as it had in 1972, with almost four times the number of employees. The chief says it's time to build an addition.

But even higher priority than more living space at the department, Chief Robert L. Gavagnie said Wednesday, is replacing five-year-old bunker gear that's outmoded and actually inhibits firefighters on the job.

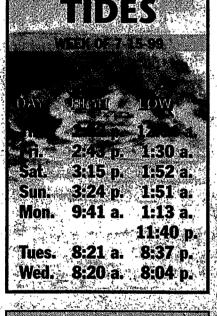

Gavagnie had no trouble convincing the two City Council members who turned out for a "workshop" on the department's needs last week. The session was the first of a series of meetings council hopes to hold before considering the city's 1999-2000 budget.

Council members Tad Black and James Thriffiley agreed with the chief it's past time to add basic living space, showers and a laundry facility to the department headquarters in the VCJ complex on Old Spanish Trail.

The duo also backed Gavagnie's call for modernized bunker gear, and about $30,000 in extra spending for a new administrative vehicle and equipment upgrades.

Stasny predicts safe, bright future BY GEOFF BELCHER

When Dr. Kim Stasny officially took over the reins of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Friday, she wasn't exactly riding into new territory-she had already served as acting superintendent for more than a month and as assistant superintendent for about three years.

"I've worked toward this all my professional career," Stasny said yesterday. "I' m very excited about this and I believe I can. make a difference for this district."

She apparently isn't alone in that belief.

The district board of trustees rapidly appointed Stasny to fill Dr. Mike Reed's vacated position, selecting her from a field of 10 applicants with very little discussion Friday.

Board President Bryon Griffith was effusive in his praise of Stasny, and said he and the other board members have great faith in her abilities to lead the Bay-Waveland district into the 21st century.

Stasny holds a Ph.D. in educational administration from the University of New Orleans, a master's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and a bachelor's degree in elementary education from Millsaps College.

She began her educational career as a science and math teacher in the Lumberton Line Consolidated School District in 1980. In 1981, she moved to the Simpson County Schools district, where she taught seventhgrade science and sixth-grade social studies.

She became a third-grade teacher in the Laurel City Schools system in 1985, but left that position to become principal of Hancock North Central Elementary in 1987, then transferred to North Bay Elementary in 1990.

Stasny was elected superintendent of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District in doing a good job of that."

In a press release issued by the board of trustees after her appointment last week, Stasny said her immediate focus was to achieve clear and rapid communication at all levels.

"That's strictly because students need to feel secure,' Stasny said. "Parents deserve to feel that they are sending their children into a safe environment, and teachers, too, need to feel that they and their students are safe.

"It's just that, with all the incidents that have occurred at other schools (around the nation), we want to do what we can to give that feeling of safety to our students, teachers and parents. And I think we're

Mississippi summer heat and the elderly

As we are all aware, the scorching Mississippi summer heat can be a major problem for the elderly.

"During hot weather the body normally perspires," said Eddie Anderson, director, Division of Aging and adult Services, Mississippi Department of Human Services.

"The evaporating perspiration is a vital part of the body's cooling system. However, older adults perspire less as their sweat glands become less productive.

Under normal conditions, once the air temperature has reached 95 degrees the body begins to cool itself down by seating and producing moisture that evaporates into the air. Whereas when the temperature stays at or above 95 degrees for several days at a time, perspiring may not be enough to cool your body down.

When your body gets too. hot to function well you can suffer heat stress (hyperthermia). The Division of Aging and Adult Services warns that the two most common forms of hyperthermia in the elderly are heat exhaustion and heat

Heat stroke is a very serious medical emergency that requires attention and treatment by a doctor. The symptoms of heat stroke include: faintness, dizziness, staggering, headache, nausea, loss of consciousness, high body temperature (104 degrees or higher), strong rapid pulse, and flushed skin.

If these symptoms develop, call a doctor immediately. The suggested treatment while waiting for the doctor includes: moving to a cooler environment, removing all clothing, and reducing the body temperature by sponging with cool

Heat exhaustion also calls for prompt action. Everyone knows that the heat can make you tired, but not everyone knows why. The reason is that as you sweat your body loses not only water, but salt as well-wared to be a fact out

The city acquired a $300,000 pumper truck for the department this year, and firefighters did most of the work to modify the department headquarters to accommodate that vehicle. Gavagnie said no additional firefighting vehicles are needed at the present time, although he said the city might need to buy an aerial truck in 2001 or 2002, to keep pace continued growth and construction. As it stands, the department has firefighters and five administrative personnel, a staff level the chief said is sufficient.

But the personnel, which operate in three shifts, lack sufficient restroom and shower facilities, office space and living area, Gavagnie said. The pinch is especially noticeable, he said, when hurricanes threaten the area and police are sharing the shower and kitchen facilities with the fire fighters.

"Right now, we're living in a hallway," said the chief, with cramped sleeping arrangements, and only one shower to accommodate all of the personnel.

The addition, which he envisions building on the front of the existing structure, would cost an estimated in-house skills can accommodate. Meanwhile, Gavagnie wants to buy new "bunker gear" for his fire fighters, at a cost of some $20,000. Most of the existing gear doesn't pass national standards, he said, due to wear and tear.

In addition, the older gear has heavy quilted lining, which is hardly fit for South Mississippi heat and humidity, Gavagnie said. Making a fire scene even hotter, the heavy suits actually absorb water and prevent air circulation, Gavagnie said. That means at fire scenes, Gavagnie has to constantly rotate his personnel in and out of firefighting.

Boulevard residential blaze as an example, saying he had to relay fire personnel from quick rests on the lawn to battling the fire.

He cited the recent North Beach

New gear has lighter lining material, he said, and repels water rather than retaining it.

Upgrades of other equipment on the chief's list included replacing a 1990 Dodge Dakota with a new administration vehicle. He said the Dodge, with 117,000 miles, could be reconfigured as a work vehicle.

He also wants a new set of Automatic External Defibrillators. allowing the department to give immediate cardiac care to citizens waiting for advanced life support personnel. The Bay department is the only one on the coast without such equipment, Gavagnie said.

Some changes Gavagnie has brought about in the past year have saved the city money, he said, including a decision to buy, rather than rent, personnel uniforms. That move has cut uniform costs by

The chief said he sayed another $1,000 by buying office supplies in bulk. He said he's transferred the savings into additional personnel training and equipment upgrades.

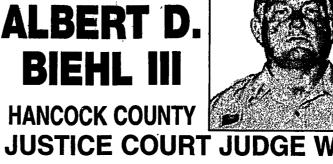

"I want to commend you," Black told the chief. "You've done a good job and earned the respect of the employees...I think you've

Vandalism on piers only done by 'idiots'

How is it that an "idiot" or two can spoil the fun of everyone else?

Take the new Dunbar Avenue pier for instance. Lights have been installed for those wanting to walk out on or fish from the pier at night, and within the past few months the lights have been tampered with and recently completely destroyed.

Wouldn't it be something if an "idiot" in the process of destroying the lights be electrocuted? Who would be responsible for the death? Probably us taxpayers.

The taxpayers are the ones who have to foot the bill every time they destroy the lights or something else on our piers.

The fishing piers are for use by the general public and for their enjoyment, not a toy for some "idiot" to play with.

It can be recalled several years ago that an "idiot" removed the cupola off the end of the old Ulman Avenue pier in Bay St. Louis. He ended up in court and additionally had to pay for the damage.

This is what needs to happen to the "idiot" who is destroying the lights on the Dunbar Avenue pier.

Several weeks ago Greg Smith stopped by the office to say good-bye as he was retiring from the state at the end of June.

As many of you know, Smith was the longtime manager of Buccaneer State Park in Waveland.

Many things have been accomplished at Buccaneer Park during Smith's tenure from 1977 to 1999, and we sure hate to see him retire and return to his hometown.

Smith did a very fine job at Buccaneer State Park, and his work within the community will be long remembered.

I wish Greg the best during his retirement, and I am sure he will be visiting us again as time goes by.

Recycling is something becoming more and more

I am glad to see the City of Waveland become involved in a recyling program.

It is surprising how much of our garbage can be recycled and put back into use instead of taking up space at a landfill, this in addition to natural resources which are saved, too.

Diamondhead appears to be the county's leader in recycling, so us folks in Bay St. Louis and Waveland need to get on the ball, as the old saying goes, and do our Jane and I have been recycling since Bay St. Louis started its program, and it sure cuts the amount of garbage we place out twice a week for collection.

The next move needs to be recycling in the other areas of the county.

There are many folks concerned about a landfill. By recycling we can cut the amount of space necessary for a landfill.

Bay downtown merchants need to stop bickering

Dear Editor:

What does it take for city merchants to get along in this town? Instead of working together, someone always wants to cut the other's throat! And the majority is over petty nonsense.

So the "Murphys," not the "DeCells," bought a parking lot and another lot. What's the first rule in business? You have to spend money to make money. And don't be afraid of a change.

So the Murphys bought a parking lot. Have you, as the other merchants, sat down with them and gone through the plans that they have for their property? They're planning for the future. They're spending money to make money.

Why are so many people afraid of change? Sure, I don't always agree with Murphy's plans, but right now they're trying to bring more people to our town. More people means more money for all of us.

As far as the alleged boycott of Dan B's, and you now who I'm talking about, the bar hasn't changed.

Your friends are still there trying to make a living just as you all do. Why take bread off their table? They're employees who work very hard for their money.

You yourselves get paid from the public, whey hurt them? More pettiness, and I'm sorry that you feel that way, but the bartenders don't deserve what's going on. Think about it.

I just wish everyone would pull together and work together instead of against each other. We're all in business to meet the public's needs.

Senate/House bill to benefit all areas

By Stella Gray Bryant
Within the next few weeks, the U.S. House of Representatives and U.S. Senate will be considering legislation that would immensely benefit the historic districts of Mississippi and other communities across the land.

Titled the Historic Homeownership Assistance Act (S. 664 and HR 1172), the measure would establish significant tax incentives for rehabilitating homes and other residential structures in national, state and local historic districts of small towns or big cities throughout America.

Under the legislation, homeowners or buyers in historic areas could take a 20 percent income tax credit of up to $40,000 against rehabilitation expenses on properties they restore and occupy.

Developers could rehabilitate properties, sell them, and pass the same credit on to homebuyers.

Moderate or lower income buyers in such neighborhoods could instead apply the credit for interest rate reductions on a mortgage or a lower down payment.

Up to one million homes nationally would benefit from this legislation. Many of these are in small towns that are seeking to strengthen or diversity their economic base and to make their communities more attractive places to live in and Others are in larger communities where historic districts stand to benefit. As we all know, there are so many communities in Mississippi, both large and small, that would benefit from this bill.

Either way, older homes would be brought back to life by a new generation of residents; and abandoned properties would receive fresh new investment and be returned to property tax rolls. Historic communities would thus be preserved, communities revitalized, and homeownership assured.

Not surprisingly, the legislation has generated strong bipartisan political support. equally important, a diverse group of political interests, including the National Trust for Historic Preservation and National Association of Home Builders, have recognized the legislation's soundness with their solid support.

The bills will be considered

The bills will be considered by the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee by mid-July. It is gratifying to have the bipartisan support for most of the members of the Mississippi Congressional Delegation.

As of this writing, Senator William Roth, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and an obvious key player, has not declared his support for this legislation.

I hope that our own Senator

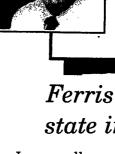

Trent Lott, as Senate Majority Leader and member of the Senate Finance Committee, will urge him to do so.

EYES ON

MISSISSIPPI

In a yellow school bus, that's where I interviewed the 19 Grey Ferris. I have talked with persons for news stories in many and various settings, but past for the 19 Education of the 19 E never before in a school bus.

Just Grey and I and seats that could carry 40 kids.
Ferris, the 53-year old

Democratic state senator from Vicksburg, is campaigning around the state in the bus for the lieutenant governor nomination on the Democratic ticket. Whenever he hoves into a town, the sight of the bus with his campaign banner on the side draws lots of local atten-

However, in political terms, the question to be answered in this year's election: Will education be enough of a selling point to determine how most Mississippians will vote?

Obviously, Ferris, with sparkling legislative credentials as a staunch ad-vocate and activist leader for better public education, hopes so. "Education," he says, "is synonymous with economic development. Without an educated workforce, we won't be able to compete." And Mississippians, he believes, are willing to pay the price to get there.

At a recent candidate forum sponsored by the Mississsippi Press Association, including both gubernatorial and lieutenant governor hopefuls, Ferris drew the most favorable audience reaction when he rose to the defense of the state's public school teachers and the quality of public education, given the financial resources sch-ools have to work with.

"There are some who say you can't make public education better by throwing money at it," he said, adding: "How would we know in Mississippi when our per pupil expenditure is, and has been, the lowest in the nation?"

In Ferris' case, traveling

In Ferris' case, traveling around in a school bus is not a cheap gimmick. It's symbolic of what he stands for. And he can back it up with a record of trying to build a better school system.

In eight years as a state senator, Ferris became the most knowledgeable and articulate legislative authority on public education, it's shortcomings and most pressing needs for improving the quality of the state's public schools.

Of course, it didn't hurt that Grey Ferris perhaps has the brightest, most incisive mind in the Legislature. Add to that, though he almost always knows more about the subject than lawmakers to whom he is speaking, he has the ability to concisely convey his thinking in a pleasant, inoffensive manner.

Ferris, as Senate Education chairman, pushed through the Legislature the major public education advances made the past four years. Chiefly, was the 1996 landmark Adequate Education program, providing critical state subsidy for poor school districts in order to upgrade all their schools to an acceptable level.

The act made Mississippi one of the few states nation-wide to voluntarily launch such a program, commonly known as "equity funding," before being forced to by their courts. In every state where the issue of helping school districts with thin supportive tax bases has gone to court, legislatures have been mandated to provide equity funding.

That's one bullet Mississippi managed to dodge, and Ferris had a lot to do with it. Lt. Gov. Ronnie Musgrove, as presiding officer of the Senate, also deserves a lot of credit.

Again, can Ferris parlay his pitch to be the "Education Lieutenant Governor" into statewide electability?

His immediate task is to win the Democratic nomination, and standing in his way is a tough foe, Amy Tuck, 36, a former state Senator who lost by a whisker winning the post of Secretary of State four years ago.

Tuck has waged a statewide campaign and proven she's good at it, and Ferris hasn't. Ferris has been trailing her by 20 points in voter opinion polls. Notably, however, the percentage of undecided voters in that race has been exceptionally high.

Troy Brown, an African-American, and former staffer at Mississippi Valley University, is also running in the Democratic primary, but he isn't expected to make a dent. The black vote, which is expected to account for at least one-half of the votes cast in the Democratic primary, obviously will bethe key to which, Tuck or Ferris, can win on August 3.

Both have been seriously courting support in the black community and can claim backing of certain black political figures. Tuck early on had garnered the backing of Sen. Alice Harden of Jackson, a longtime political activist, and got public verbal endorsements from several members of the Black Legislative Caucus at a get-together in Greenwood back in May.

Ferris, however, apparently has the backing of Mississippi's most influential black political figure, 2nd District Congressman Bennie Thompson. How active Thompson becomes in Ferris' behalf, could well determine the outcome of the race.

Meantime, Ferris' camp contends that Tuck is already promising major Senate committee chairmanships, and, especially, had pledged to sup-

State Department of Education offers safe schools conference

JACKSON -- The State Department of Education is set to hold a safe schools conference July 19-20 at the Jackson Hilton on County Line Road.

"Bullying disrupts school life," Ginn said. "It is very difficult for students to learn if they are constantly in fear of being bullied. We want to do what we can to help prevent bullying in schools. This is definitely a good place to start."

Herrington goes flag-to-flag at Sun Coast

Michael Herrington of Baton Rouge sat on the pole alongside Butch David of Geisman, La. for the start of the Cajun Sprint feature at Sun Coast Speedway.

Herrington moved to the front coming out of turn two and never looked back as he set sail for the checkers. Herrington did have one anxious moment when he made contact with a lap car coming out of turn four, but neither car was slowed.

Although David was unable to mount a challenge for the lead he was able to finish in the second spot over Lane Wittington of Houma, who had worked his way through lap laps before he could mount a challenge for the second spot.

Angelette did not give up any further positions as he held off Scott Wimberly of Laurel and Herman Carrier of Amite.

There was only one caution in the feature race. Although it was filled with battles for position, skillful driving prevailed. David, Bobby Ingram of Brandon and Rickey Brewer of Baker, La. were all heat race winners.

Wallace Allen had a perfect night as he won both heat and feature races in the IMCA class. Allen has been on a run as of late, making several trips to victory lane.

Allen did face a strong chalmove past Kelly Angelett of lenge from Donald Parker

Thibodeaux, but ran out of before Parker suffered steering problem ad was finished for the night.

Ben Stephens held the second spot before Kalif Sellier worked his way into third and was able to move past Stephens to also challenge

There was not enough laps remaining for Sellier to find a way past Allen to claim the lead. Ron Tubbs also managed to slip past Stephens to claim the third spot before the checkers came out. Nick Sellier chased Stephens to the finish line to round out the top five.

.Mike Ladner picked up an easy win in the Pro Stock feature as he moved to a comfortable lead over second place finisher Rodney Bruce. Bruce was able to hold off team mate Randy Deschamp and heat race winner Jeremy Broadus as they made their way to the checkers.

Michael Williams and Lonnie Scarbrough shared the front row for the start of the Street Stock feature. Scarbrough managed to lead the early going before Williams slipped past on the low side coming out of turn two and into the lead. While Williams moved to a comfortable lead, Rodney Barber challenged Scarbrough for the second spot but was unable to find a way past.

Noah Daspit and Joey Dillard rounded out the top five finishers. Danny Lee was the heat race winner in this class.

Michael Beech also made a clean sweep in the Rookie division winning both heat and feature races. Beech was followed to the checkers in the feature by James Dean and Robert Echols.

erty owner to build elsewhere or put the parcel to a different use than was originally intended," said Maher.

On March 29, Maher wrote all coastal county officials in charge of administering floodplain regulations that his office "received indications that local officials are informing residents of travel trailers in the floodplain that they may exceed the 180 consecutive days limitation...'

Maher said, although the governing body may grant an extension under "extenuating circumstances," FEMA (the Federal Emergency Management Administration) expects all...participating communities to act responsibly and authoratively in administering their floodplain management regulations." Failure to do so could jeopardize a community's future funding, Maher warned.

About the temporary trailers, Maher said, "These units were placed on owners' property for the express purpose of providing short-term housing for eligible disaster victims who chose this option pending repair or replacement of their permanent dwelling."

He said his agency was concerned about the trailers in the flood plain areas with the approaching hurricane season, and he hoped the local governing authorities would timely evacuate residents at risk.

Lusk said because of "extenuating circumstances," the Jackson County Board of Supervisors had granted "a cou-ple of extensions," but none has been granted in Harrison or Hancock counties.

On behalf of Holden, her friend, Barbara Foreman, first appealed to Gavney for an extension on June 30, asking that the family be allowed to keep the trailers on site "for two more months until the completion of her home."

Foreman said, "We had delays in funding, bad weather and a shortage of materials."

Gavney told her he could not grant an extension, so the family began what Gavney and others have described as a "harassment campaign."

Holden went to see Chancery Court Clerk Tim Kellar several times requesting an extension, and Kellar said he told her, he could not help her. The family also approached U.S. Sen. Trent Lott and U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor to intervene.

Gavney came before the Hancock Board of Supervisors at its July 6 meeting, and had with him a written message faxed to him by Emma Pickering, a temporary Housing Specialist in MEMA's Jackson Office.

In that memo, Pickering told Gavney that, "Tommy Thomas (another MEMA temporary Housing Officer) would like you to know that MEMA stands by your decision not to grant an extension.

Despite the support from MEMA, the Board of Supervisors passed a motion for MEMA to grant an extension, but the family had already been removed from the premises.

Gavney said after Hurricane Georges, so many people had to rebuild, that Hancock County, like others, did not require a building permit to repair or replace a damaged structure or residence, but an elevation certificate was required to build a new residence in a flood zone.

However, after construction was started on the new home, Gavney said he notified the contractor that he did not have a flood elevation on file to show the new construction would comply with a base flood elevation of 10 feet, and he stopped construction at the site.

Fayard Millwork Co., of Gulfport, the primary contractor, faxed the elevation certificate to Gavney on June 24, and the contractor is back on the job.

Don Waite, disaster assistance officer, with the Small Business Administration in Atlanta, confirmed to the Echo that Holden had obtained the maximum SBA disaster loan of $89,000 to rebuild the dwelling.

And, a spokesman for the contractor, Fayard Millwork, said she expected the home to be completed within the next two months.

The aerospike engine was developed and assembled by Boeing Rocketdyne Propulsion & Power in Canoga Park, Calif. A 1970s version of the engine was last tested in 1972 at Santa Susana Field Laboratory in California.

The test firing of this new engine marks the first time a linear aerospike engine will be tested at Stennis Space Cen-

The engine will power the X-33, a half-scale technology demonstrator of a full-scale, commercially-developed, reusable launch vehicle, called VentureStarTM, that is scheduled for development early in the next century.

The X-33 is being developed under a cooperative agreement between NASA and Lockheed Martin Skunk Works of Palmdale, Calif. Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., manages the X-33 program for NASA.

A briefing was held to introduce the new engine to the media. Briefings were given by NASA's Steve Nunez, Stennis Space Center's X-33 project manager, and Rick Hilscher, Boeing Rocketdyne Propulsion and Power's program manager for the aerospike engine.

"The arrival of the X-33's linear aerospike engine for testing at Stennis Space Center signifies the agency's and industry's recognition of Stennis' expertise in propulsion testing," said NASA's Steve Nunez, X-33 project manager at Stennis. "We are proud to be part of such an important element of the program."

The engine is the first of four engines scheduled to be tested by Stennis personnel. Two flight engines will be mounted on the X-33 after successful testing of the flight and development engines.

After initial testing is complete, two development engines will be tested together in the dual-engine configuration that the X-33 will use. The engine test program is scheduled to be completed prior to first launch of the X-33 in July 2000.

LaGrange named to authority

The Mississippi State Port Authority Board of Port Commissioners has appointed Gary P. LaGrange to the position of executive director of the Mississippi State Port Authority at Gulfport.

A native of Louisiana, La-Grange has more than 23 years experience in the maritime industry. He holds a bachelor's degree in geography/English and economics and a master's in urban planning from the University of Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette.

From 1976 to 1997, he was executive director of the Port of West St. Mary in Franklin, La. Currently, he is executive director and CEO of the Port of West

St. Mary in Franklin.

Currently, he is executive director and CEO of the Port of South Louisiana, headquartered in LaPlace, La. He is actively involved in the American Association of Port Authorities, Gulf Ports of the Americas Association, Inland Rivers Port & Terminals Association, National Waterways Conference, and a variety of other industry and professional associations.

Prior to entering the maritime industry, LaGrange worked in city and regional planning, including stints as assistant director of the Lafayette City and Regional Planning Commission and director of the Acadiana Regional Planning Commission.

Mississippi State Port Authority Board of Commissioners President John Rester said, "Gary LaGrange was an outstanding candidate for this position. After an extensive national search, our board determined that Gary's experience in the port industry, knowledge of the Gulf and Latin American trades, and reputation were unparalleled.

"We are pleased that he has accepted this position and we look forward to working with him to continue the growth and prosperity of the Port Authority for the citizens of Mississippi."

LaGange, who is expected to begin his tenure at the Port of Gulfport in mid-August, will succeed Anthony J. Taormina, who has served as the port's executive director since 1994.

Taormina is leaving the port to take a position as director of logistics and terminal operations in the transportation division of Dames & Moore Group of Portland, Oregon.
